LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO E.

You must direct your effort now to your children, and not them with all their faults. Be wiser than to serve them so much that they grow selfish and like their father. They can be a great help to you if you direct them to do and to think that they are carried out with you. If you feel that you cannot live with your husband, do not insist, or quarrel with him. He will probably be made to leave you for separation without divorce and he will be compelled by law to support his family. If you cannot tolerate a lawyer, go to the nearest judge.

Husbands of Homes

That woman is a fortune teller, being the wife of a miser, who is an efficient, brilliant woman, who is merely seeking a temporary change. But hotels and boarding houses are full of women whose housework has been so light that they are unable to find what a miser was, and so insisted on giving it up altogether.

If they used their leisure to good purpose, that would be one thing, but they don't. I met two of them in the city, standing in a florist's shop, talking to the clerk. "We're trying to kill time until dinner," they said. They had spent the afternoon at a show.

"Poor souls! It is themselves they blame," I thought.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, March 31.—Members of the Labor's National Peace Council are protesting against the Federal indictment here on charges of fomenting labor strikes to cut off supplies from America.

They are to be tried within the next thirty days.

Among the men indicted are William Buchanan, H. Robert Fowler, and other representatives from Illinois.

Former Attorney General Frank S. Johnson of Ohio, David Eastman of New York, and others.

The council was financed by Franz Rintelsen, and organized as a non-partisan body to cause the government to stop labor troubles that would cause the shipment of munitions and supplies to the Allies, the government charges.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Man of Destiny.
"Now, then, I'll explain," said Alaire, turning to the men. "Longorio declares he won't have me except as his wife, and I think he means it. He is amazingly egotistical. He has tremendous ambitions. He thinks this war is his great opportunity, and he means to be president—he's sure of it. He loves me, but he loves himself better. I'm sure. Now, don't you see? He'll have to choose one or the other."

Father O'Malley did not appear to appreciate the full force of this reasoning. "My dear," he said, gravely, "he can make you a widow again. In such times as these men are savages."

"Oh, but that's not all," Alaire turned to her newly made husband. "They let you in, and they'll let you out again—if you go quickly, before it's known what we've done."

Dave stared at her in bewilderment. "I go, and—leave you?" He seemed doubtful of her sanity.

"Yes." When he laughed shortly, Alaire cried: "Dave, you must! Don't you see what I'm driving at? If he can't marry me, if he finds you're gone and he can't lay hands on you, what can he do but let me go? Dave, dear, for my sake, for the sake of us both—"

"You're excited," he told her, and drew her to himself gently. "Please! Please!" she implored. "You don't know that man," said Father O'Malley, with conviction.

But Alaire insisted, half hysterically now: "I do; that's just it. I do know him. He is planning the greatest thing for himself, his head is in the clouds, and he doesn't care for the things he used to do. That's why I called to those women as witnesses. He can't put them out of the way. With Dave gone I'll be safe. He can't ignore our marriage. But otherwise—There's no telling what he may do. Why, he'll kill you, Dave, as he killed Ed." She interrupted a face eloquent with pleading. "Won't you do this for me?"

"No," Law declared, firmly. "You wouldn't ask it if you were in your senses. Get me a gun and I'll shoot my way out. We'll go until they stop us. But don't ask me to leave you."

She searched his face eagerly, pleadingly, then with a quivering sigh relaxed her tension. "Then we've only made matters worse. You've spoiled our only chance."

Father O'Malley, who had been lost in thought, spoke up again: "Perhaps you will let me try my wits. But first, do I understand that it was he who effected the death of—Mr. Austin?"

Dave recognized as coherently as he could the circumstances of Ed's death, and told how he had learned, through Jose, of Longorio's intentions. As the priest listened a spot of color grew in his cheeks, his eyes glowed with indignation. He was about to make known what was in his mind when Alaire raised her hand and in a strangled whisper exclaimed:

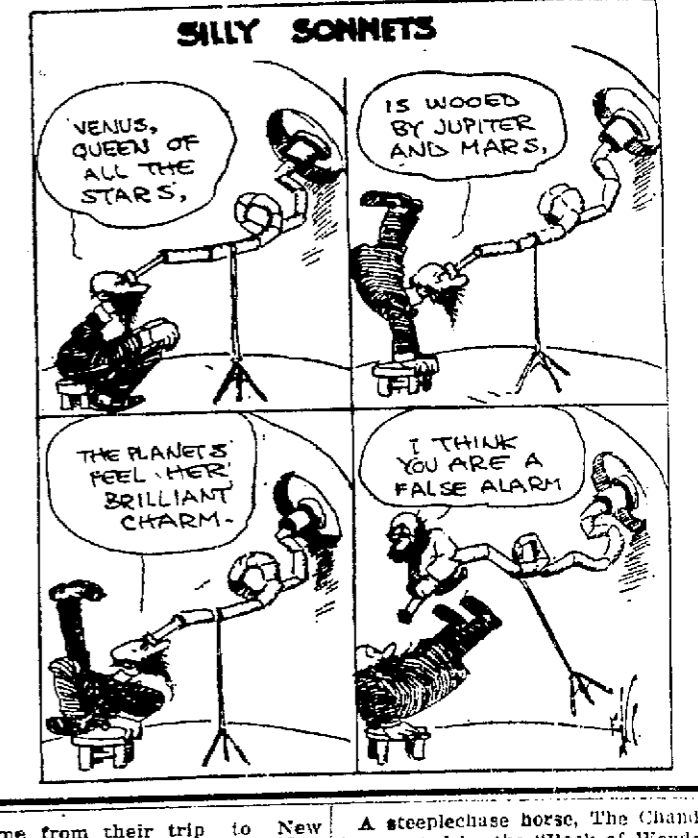

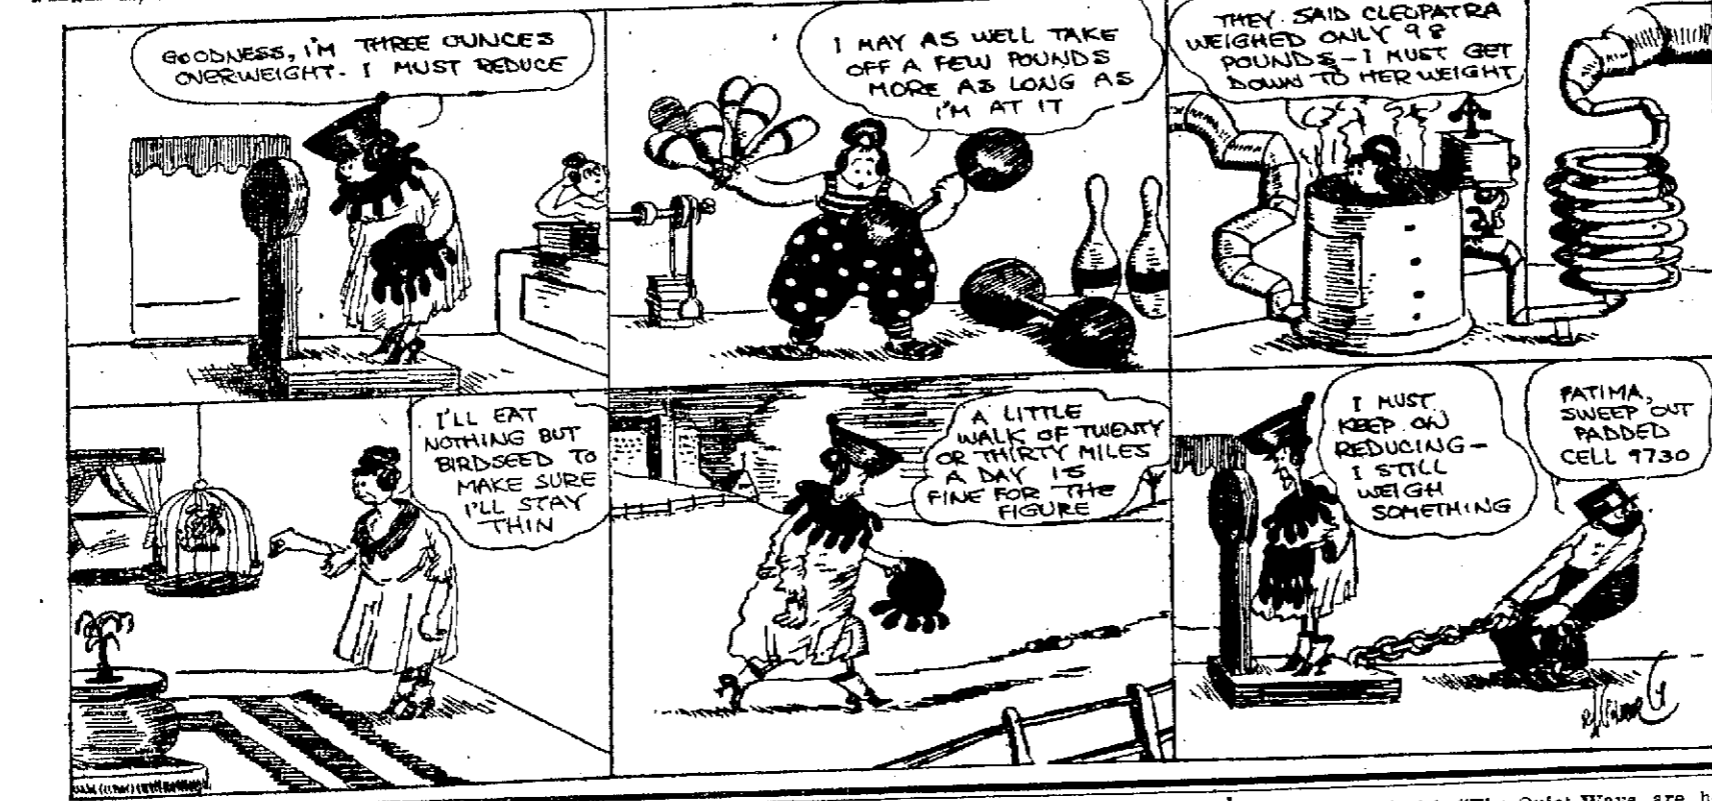

"Shh! Listen!" The heavy door of the hacienda creaked, a quick tread sounded on the tiles, the door to the living room was flung open, and Longorio entered. He was hot and dusty from his ride, but with a lover's impetuosity he had made straight for this lighted room.

For the briefest instant he balanced himself just inside the portal, and the smile remained fixed upon his lips. Then his eyes became riveted with white and he made a swift, catlike movement of retreat. Plainly this was the supremest surprise of his lifetime, and he seemed to doubt his senses. But he recovered quickly. Trusting his head forward, he demanded:

"What is this? You—and you?" He stared from Dave to the priest, then back again. They all spoke at once, but he heard only Alaire's words: "It came to find me." Pancho appeared in the doorway behind Longorio, saying, "I heard you ride up, sir, so I ran to tell you about this fellow."

But the general cut him short. "Call your men, quick!" he cried in a voice that sent the soldier leaping back into the night.

FATIMA, SWEEP OUT PADDED CELL 9730.

over, paralyzed momentarily by surprise and horror; his eyes troubled; he swayed as if his sight had blurred. "I said I'd never marry you," she rushed on, vibrantly. "This is the man I love—the only man. Yes, and I've learned the truth about you. I know who killed Mr. Austin."

Longorio did a very unexpected thing then; slowly, unconsciously, as if the movement were the result of a half-forgotten training, he crossed himself.

But now from the hall at his back came the pounding of boot-heels, and a half-dozen panting troopers tumbled through the door. He waved them back and out into the hall again.

Father O'Malley, who had been trying to make himself heard, stepped in front of the general and said, solemnly: "Take care what you do, Longorio. I have married these people, and you can't undo what I have done. We are American citizens. The laws of civilization protect us."

The Mexican fought for his voice, thenammered: "You are my priest; I brought you here. I offered to marry her. Now—you force me to damn my soul." Turning his eyes wildly upon Alaire, he shouted: "Too late, eh? You say I am too late! It seems that I am barely in time."

Dave added his words to the others: "You are ten to one, but you can't have her," he cried, defiantly. "Jose Sanchez confessed to the murder of Mr. Austin, and told how you had got Mrs. Austin to come here. The whole thing is known in Washington and Mexico City by this time. The newspapers have it; everybody knows you are keeping her as your prisoner, and that I have come for her. If she is harmed, all Mexico, all the world, will know that you are worse than a murderer."

Longorio reached behind his back and slammed the door in the faces of his listening men. "What is this? What did Jose confess?" he inquired, sharply. "He swears you hired him."

"Bah! The word of a peador." In spite of the man's contemptuous tone Dave saw the expression in his face and made a quick decision. "There's a limit to what you dare to do, Longorio. I'm unarmed; I make no resistance, so there is no excuse for violence. I surrender to you, and claim protection for myself and my wife."

But Longorio was not to be tricked. "Good!" he cried, triumphantly. "I have been looking forward to something like this, and I shall give myself a great pleasure." He laid a hand upon the door-knob, but before he could turn it the Catholic priest had him by the arm, and with a strength surprising in one of his stature wrenched him away. Father O'Malley's face was white and terrible; his voice was deep, menacing; the hand he raised above Longorio seemed to brandish a weapon.

"Stop!" he thundered. "Are you a madman? Destruction hangs over you; destruction of body and soul. You dare not separate those whom God hath joined."

ous or shameful, honored or dishonored! Restrain your hatred and conquer your lust, or forego forever your dreams of empire and pass into oblivion."

"You are a meddler," Longorio stormed. "You make a loud noise, but I shall rid Mexico of your kind. We shall have no more of you priests."

Father O'Malley shook the speaker as a parent shakes an unruly child. "See! You have completely lost your head. But I want you to listen to what I am saying. Whether you are more good than evil, God must judge, but the people of Mexico are good people, and they will not be ruled by a man who is wholly bad. You have the power to remove this man and this woman, yes, and this priest who dares to point out the pit at your feet; but if you do you will never command another Mexican army. There is no war. We are not your enemies. The world knows we are here, and it holds you accountable for our safety. Tomorrow you will have to face the reckoning."

Longorio listened. It was plain that he recognized the truth of O'Malley's words, but he was convulsed with rage. "Good!" he cried. "I see my dreams dissolve, but I am not the first great man to trade an empire for a woman. Antony, the Roman general, laid his honor in a woman's arms. I had a shining destiny, but Mexico will be the sufferer by my betrayal. Instead of Longorio the Deliverer, I shall be known as Longorio the Lover, the man who gave all—"

O'Malley interrupted forcefully. "Enough of this! Come with me. I have something more to say to you." He swung open the door into the hall and, taking the general by the arm, fairly dragged him from the room and into the one opposite. The lieutenant and his men looked on in amazement, shuffling their feet and shifting their rifle-butts noisily upon the floor.

Alaire turned an anxious face to Dave, saying: "He is wonderful. Longorio is almost—afraid of him."

"Yes; he may bring him to his senses. If he doesn't—" Dave cast his eyes desperately over the room, conscious all the time that he was being watched with suspicion by the men outside. He stirred restlessly and moistened his lips. "Longorio would be crazy to injure you."

Ten minutes passed; fifteen. Alaire leaned, motionless, against the table; Dave paced about, followed by the eyes of the soldiers. One of the latter struck a match, and in the silence it sounded like a gunshot. Dave started, at which the soldiers laughed. They began to talk in murmurs. The odor of cigarette smoke drifted in to the man and the woman.

Finally the door through which Father O'Malley and Longorio had passed opened, and the priest emerged. He was alone. His face was flushed and damp; his eyes were glowing. He forced the Mexicans out of his way and, entering the living room, closed the door behind him.

"Well?" his two friends questioned, anxiously. "I've done all I can. The rest is out of our hands." The little man sat down heavily and mopped his forehead. "What does he say?" "He told me to come here and wait. I never saw a man so torn, so distracted."

(TO BE CONTINUED.) "Some people," said Uncle Eben, "regards truth de same as dey do jewelry. Dey admires it very much, but only uses it on special occasions."—Washington Star.

SUPREME

The house wired for electric service stands supreme, at the touch of a button the washing, ironing, sweeping, sewing and cooking are done or the rooms are flooded with a soft, beautiful, healthful light. Just as you wish. With its hundreds of uses could anything be more necessary to the comfort and convenience of a home than electricity?

Knowing that many have hesitated to use electric service because they thought they could not afford it, The Electric Company has reduced its rates so that no one need be without it. We have reduced the price of house wiring to the minimum. There is nothing else for you to do but call us up and have our representative come and explain the whole proposition to you. You will be agreeably surprised when you find out what it is.

VOTE JANESVILLE DRY AND WE'LL ALL PROFIT

We have presented many good reasons and many plain facts on the benefits of a DRY JANESVILLE. There is much to be said for a DRY JANESVILLE and nothing against it.

Janesville's Trade Will Increase

THE trade in every retail store in this city of Janesville will be increased when the city is voted dry next Tuesday. It is only common sense to believe this because the families of the city will have thousands of dollars more to spend for the real true necessities of life—food, clothing, homes and home furnishings, education, recreation and so on and so forth.

They will have these added thousands of dollars to spend for materials that will benefit each one of the family. The money will not be wasted for the products of the saloon. And where is the man that, deep down in his own heart, will not admit that money spent in the saloon is more than wasted.

Any retailer of the city will tell you of families that he knows personally that are getting along with less of life's necessities than should be necessary. Getting along with much less than they would have to if a portion of the man's earnings did not go to the saloon.

And the farmer—every single town that has had the moral courage to vote the better and cleaner way—the DRY way—says that the farmer favors a dry town for his trading. When a farmer sends a man to town for supplies or with produce he knows, if that town is without saloons, that his money is not going to be thrown away. He feels safe.

The farmer is good enough business man to see the advantage of a dry town to do his trading in.

Other cities have been afraid that they would lose farmer trade if they voted DRY—but they did not lose a single dollar—but gained trade they never had before. Let us profit by their experience. These others have shown us the way.

The drink bill of the United States is estimated as $2,300,000,000 per year. $23 for every man, woman and child—$115 for each family. Think of this and then figure it out yourself. These last ten words are enough to convince any man of the right way—the DRY Way.

Taxes Are Lower In Dry Towns

EXPERIENCE—and that, after all, is the only thing we can work on intelligently—shows us that taxes decrease in dry towns. Taxes decrease to say nothing of the many other benefits to the community; the grown people and the children that are to make our citizens of tomorrow.

The ills created by the saloon, for which the public must pay the bills, consume far more tax money than the amount received from the licenses.

Under no license, money formerly spent for drink is diverted to improvement of homes, increasing taxable valuation of the community; to the purchase of food, clothing, furniture, necessities and luxuries, or deposited in savings banks. Our common sense makes us see and believe this.

A Dry Janesville is going to be an even more attractive place to live in and rear children. This will increase our population and give us a better chance to secure even more desirable manufacturing, which in turn creates more business and adds to the taxable valuation of the city.

Mr. F. J. Vea of Stoughton, a man whom we all know and respect, says: the expense of running our city, over and above the money received from saloons the last wet year was $32,900. The first dry year $32,600. During 1916 tax levies for city purposes was $22,000. There are no more empty buildings than formerly, in fact, a great many new buildings have been put up since we voted our city DRY. Mr. Vea adds that there is a decided improvement in the working men of the town—they are working steadily and their home conditions are much improved.

But—disregarding the experience of towns that have voted DRY—Wouldn't you pay $1 or $1.13 per thousand more in taxes to take out the saloons and their influence? Surely you would!

Production Will Increase In Dry Janesville

PRODUCTION will increase in Janesville when we vote it DRY next Tuesday. Men, the heads of families, will be able to produce more and better still and more important than all they will not waste their hard earned money.

Men will spend their money for helpful things. Articles of food, better food (roast beef instead of soup meat) clothing, furniture, etc. And more money will go into the savings banks which means that there will be more building of homes and much improvement of existing homes.

Ask the head of any manufacturing plant which he prefers—a dry town or a wet. A sober man or a man who comes to work with a few shots under his belt and who requires a few bracers during the day. It's dollars to doubloons that he will say the sober man.

Well then—isn't it the sober man that will get the better job? Sure it is. And without saloons ninety-nine per cent of the men of Janesville will be sober. Sober and happy. And their wives, mothers and children will be happier.

Really there is no argument against a DRY Janesville. You know it and we all know it. And it's going to be voted DRY on Tuesday. Be sure that you can say to yourself—you were one to help make Janesville DRY.

If you have children—or love them as any real man does—you don't want to take any chance of their getting the drink habit. That's reason enough to vote for a DRY Janesville. A better and cleaner Janesville.

There's every reason why Janesville should be DRY and not a single reason why we should allow saloons to remain with us. You have a vote Tuesday, so use it like a man—a real true American Citizen.

Make Others Respect Janesville. YOU Vote DRY!

BETTER JANESVILLE

TO THE VOTERS OF JANESVILLE: A Few Words from the Better Janesville Committee

In view of the fact that the voters of Janesville are an Intelligent, Observing class of people we have deemed it proper for them to exercise their own good judgment in voting on the wet and dry question.

We believe they are wise enough to distinguish between the advantages and disadvantages offered.

WET SYSTEM LICENSE

$26,000 Revenue

Legitimate Saloons

Regulation and Control

Dealers Under Bonds and Responsibility

Present Tax Rates

Honesty and Decency

Home Town Boosters

DRY (?) SYSTEM NO LICENSE

No Revenue

Blind Pigs, Bootleggers, etc.

No Regulation or Control

No Responsibility

Increase in Valuation or Tax Rates

Sneaks, Liars, Hypocrites

Empty Stores, Dead Town

THESE TWO SYSTEMS FORM THE ISSUE IN THIS ELECTION

We have not deemed it wise to bring to Janesville a lot of Paid Reformers to tell us how to vote on this question as the Drys have done.

We believe the voters of Janesville will demonstrate their own good judgment at the polls, April 3rd., by rendering a handsome majority in favor of License regulation.

WHAT WE BELIEVE

1. That temperance is right and that prohibition is wrong.
2. That you can vote a community dry, but cannot vote people dry.
3. That a man who needs a law to make him temperate needs brains more than anything else.
4. That it is wrong to abuse the right to drink, but worse to rob all men of that right because a few abuse it.
5. That a blind tiger is worse than the worst saloon.
6. That regulation is better for temperance than prohibition.
7. That you cannot promote temperance by closing the legitimate licensed saloons and converting beer drinkers into whiskey drinkers.
8. That a boy who needs a prohibition straight jacket to prevent him from becoming a drunkard, needs parents a blame sight worse.
9. That only through freedom of choice can man develop the faculty of self-control.
10. That when a man has not the liberty to enter a restaurant anywhere and order himself what he wants to eat and drink, he has no liberty worth bragging about.

WHAT WE DENY

1. We deny that a dry town ever made a great city.
2. We deny that righteousness and temperance can come by law.
3. We deny that Christ did wrong when he drank wine and made it for others to drink.
4. We deny that 90 per cent of crime is due to the saloon, for if that were true, Southern prohibition states, and Turkey, would only have ten per cent as much crime as we have in the wet state of the North.
5. We deny that 80 per cent of poverty is due to liquor, because if it were true, all the drys would be rich.
6. We deny that God has authorized the Anti-Saloon League to regulate the habits and tastes of mankind.
7. We deny that prohibition prohibit, except in Turkey, the penitentiary and hell.
8. We deny that it is right to abolish a thing that many enjoy because a few people abuse their right to use it.
9. We deny that it is right to make any thing a crime which is not contrary to the moral law.
10. We deny that prohibitionists have a monopoly on all honor, integrity, temperance and Christian virtue.

Doesn't Brick Make a Most Attractive Exterior?
Of course, and then, too, there are advantages on the interior. For instance, it's warmer in winter and cooler in summer. The insurance cost is less. The Brick lasts forever, and always looks good. It's fireproof. Let us send you some interesting booklets. Just ask us on a postal.
